(Note: Coal mining has a devastating impact on fisheries. In March 2021, on the BC side of the BC/Alberta border, Teck Coal Limited was ordered to pay \$60 million in fines and monetary court orders for its role in water pollution. This was the highest ever penalty imposed by a court for a violation of the Fisheries Act. Selenium and calcite were major parts of this – and will be for mining in the Eastern Slopes, if such mining is allowed to proceed!)

(Note: Apart from all the environmental devastation wrought by coal mining, the economics of coal mining are subject to unpredictable global forces. The emergence of new technologies could make metallurgical coal less valuable on the world market. Plus, metallurgical coal from the Eastern Slopes is not as high in quality as metallurgical coal from the B.C. side of the border or metallurgical coal in Australia. Moreover, Canada's ability to depend on China as a long-term, dependable trading partner would presently appear to be in question.)
